

Liz Schwab, Head of External Affairs, Northeast & Mid-Atlantic

Liz Schwab leads external affairs for Google in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic, overseeing policy, government relations and community affairs for the company in the region. As part of this work, she serves as a liaison to the government and community, working with neighborhoods, elected officials, nonprofits, businesses, and advocacy organizations on projects and issues of mutual interest at the state and local level.

She serves as board chair for Tech Goes Home, a digital equity nonprofit in Greater Boston, and represents Google on the board of various business groups across Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. Before Google, she had stints in strategy and operations in the tech startup world, coached Division I college basketball, and worked on child and family issues for Senator Judd Gregg (NH). Liz is a graduate of The George Washington University, where she was a four year starter and captain of the women's basketball team, and where she also holds an MBA.

A New Hampshire native, Liz lives north of Boston with her husband Brian and three sons.
